

A B S T R A C T

The invention relates to linking at least two multimedia terminals connected to each other via a 5 landline or cellular network. Before a call from the terminal of a calling person to the terminal of a called person, the calling person chooses a multimedia content to be sent to the terminal of the called person and said multimedia content is received by the terminal of the 10 called person synchronously with the reception of signaling of the call.